DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 1, there is no clear antecedent basis for "the receiving space" (line 5).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Huang (2005/0140845).

Huang discloses a seat back display comprising a housing 31 having a frame, a receiving chamber, a backboard, and two side walls; a receptacle 312 in the backboard; a display module 33 removably installed in the receiving chamber, the display module having a complementary connector 331 for connecting with the receptacle 312 for providing the display module with power supply and display signals; and a connecting mechanism 313 connecting the housing and the display module, the display module being rotatable in the receiving chamber of the housing.

Regarding claim 2, see Fig. 5.

Regarding claim 3, see Fig. 8. The frame has an upper wall (toward which reference character 31 is pointing). The front of the upper wall (i.e., the end that's closer to the front of the car) is integrally connected to the backboard, which constitutes a support for preventing the display module from over-rotating in a counter-clockwise direction.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 4-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Huang (2005/0140845) in view of Brewington et al. (6,654,068).

Huang discloses the invention substantially as claimed, as set forth above. However, there are no guiding grooves in the side walls of the frame. Brewington teaches that it was known in the art to provide guiding grooves 130 in the sidewall of a frame 134 that are engaged by posts 128, in order to limit the rotation of an item that is rotatably attached to the frame. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the frame disclosed by Huang with guide grooves and posts, as taught by Brewington, in order to limit the range of rotation of the display.

Art Unit: 3611

Regarding claim 6, because the grooves disclosed by Brewington are arcuate, if they were incorporated into the device disclosed by Huang, at least a portion of their extent would slope toward the backboard.

Regarding claim 7, Fig. 7 of Brewington shows that each end of the groove terminates in an arcuate recess.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
